

Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn

Wednesday January 23 at 6:30 PM

Mark Twain's 1885 novel is simultaneously acknowledged as a masterpiece and banned from schools. James Joseph Golden, director of education at the Mark Twain House & Museum in Hartford, will explore the book in the long context of American history, beginning with the origins and growth of slavery, the Civil War, Reconstruction, and continuing on through to the Civil Rights movement to today.
